The heating equipment in this room is not satisfactory for a day nursery. It consists of six rows of pipes extending about fifty feet along either side of the room and across the back. These pipes are from twelve to thirty-six inches from the floor. At present benches are placed in front of the pipes to protect the children from jumping into them.

SURVEY OF PRESENT CONDITIONS

I. BUILDING

The Columbus Day Nursery is located at 371 West Fourth Street in South Boston. It is a two-story red brick building which the Knights of Columbus bought from the Telephone Company, and has been occupied by the nursery for ten years.

The first floor is one large room, about seventy-eight by thirty-one feet, with only one corner cut off for the entrance. The lighting in this room is good. There are fourteen large windows, three and two-thirds by nine feet; two face south, five face east and seven face west. The front windows facing north are different; three of them are right together and are about eleven feet wide, and the fourth one is four and two-thirds feet wide. There are twenty-two electric light fixtures extending from the ceiling.

The heating equipment in this room is not satisfactory for a day nursery. It consists of six rows of pipes extending about fifty feet along either side of the room and across the back. These pipes are from twelve to thirty-six inches from the floor. At present benches are placed in front of the pipes to protect the children from bumping into them.

I. BUILDING

The Columbus Day Nursery is located at 271 West Fourth Street in South Boston. It is a two-story red brick building which the Knights of Columbus bought from the Telephone Company, and has been occupied by the nursery for ten years. The first floor is one large room, about seventy-eight by thirty-one feet, with only one corner cut off for the entrance. The lighting in this room is good. There are four-teen large windows, three and two-thirds by nine feet; two face south, five face east and seven face west. The front windows facing north are different; three of them are eight feet high and are about eleven feet wide, and the fourth one is four and two-thirds feet wide. There are twenty-two electric light fixtures extending from the ceiling. The heating equipment in this room is not satisfactory for a day nursery. It consists of six rows of pipes extending about fifty feet along either side of the room and across the back. These pipes are from twelve to thirty-six inches from the floor. At present benches are placed in front of the pipes to protect the children from bumping into them.

A temporary partition eight feet high has been built adjacent to the entrance to be used for an office and reception room. This again is not satisfactory because the height of it affords no privacy when the children are in the large play-room.

The natural lighting and exposure on the second floor is good for rooms having north, south and west exposure, but there are no windows on the east side. A hallway runs along this side of the building on the second floor. Natural light is not essential, but it would be very desirable for it is used as the locker room for the group occupying this floor. The heating equipment is satisfactory. Artificial lighting is also good.

The front room on the second floor, about twenty by twenty-one feet, is used for a playroom for the younger children. A half-way partition encloses a small corner, five by eight feet, affording lavatory and toilet facilities during play time for this group. It is not sufficient to accommodate the entire group for routines because there is only one toilet and one washbowl.

Opening off of the front room is a rather large room, about seventeen by twenty-five feet, which is used for a sleeping room. This room has a large window and a second door

The front room on the second floor, about twenty by twenty-one feet, is used for a playroom for the younger children. A half-way partition encloses a small corner, five by eight feet, allowing jacks and ball facilities during play time for this group. It is not sufficient to accommodate the entire group for roughness because there is only one toilet and one washbasin.

Opening off of the front room is a rather large room, about seventeen by twenty-five feet, which is used for a sleeping room. This room has a large window and a second door which opens on to the hall.

Beyond the sleeping room is the faculty room, about nine by twenty-two feet. This also has one window on the west side of the building.

The lavatory opens off of the teachers' room. There are five washbowls and five toilets in this room. It is about twelve by twenty-two feet. One corner, six and one-half by six and one-half, has been cut off to make a cupboard which opens into the kitchen.

The combined kitchen and dining room extends across the back of the building on the second floor. It is a large room, about thirty-one by nineteen feet. One window opens on the west side and two on the south. The back door opens on to the fire escape.

In the hall, adjacent to the lavatory, is a cupboard for storing cleaning utensils. There is a utility sink in the cupboard.

The main portion of the basement has recently been converted into a large playroom which is used when the weather does not permit outdoor play. This room has three large windows on the front and six along the west side. The lower frames of these windows are about five feet from the floor. Two windows on the east side have metal shutters on so they afford no light. Thirteen light fixtures extend from the ceiling and there are numerous current outlets around the room. A drinking fountain and a washbowl are on one side of the room.

- In a small washroom on the east side of the basement is a sink and two toilets.

Beyond the washroom is another small room where the oil heater and the water heater are. A third small room toward the back accommodates the oil supply.

In the back west corner is a large cupboard with shelves for storing the kitchen supplies.

The back door opens on to a rather small cement yard.

As a result of the fire inspection made during December only one recommendation was made, namely, that if the basement room was to continue to be used for a playroom the doors in that room should have metal coverings.

Until 1946 the Nursery was supported by the regional unit of the Knights of Columbus. However, within the last year the building and fourteen hundred fifty dollars were turned over to the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Boston, Most Reverend Richard J. Cushing.

The following regular donations are received from the Catholic Daughters of America:

1. Monthly check of ten dollars for the poor.
